Apparently the severe criticism which has been made in other countries upon the shooting down of the people of St. Petersburg who desired to petition the Czar has induced the appointment of an official whose special duty it will be to investigate and report upon the subject. There have been strong allegations that the massacre was deliberately planned, or that the authorities were criminally negligent in permitting the assemblage of the people as they did. That these reports have reached the Czar and disturbed him would appear from the action now taken. The report in all probability will excuse the massacre and put the blame on the people, instead of where it rightly belongs, but the move to secure it shows that the Russian government is sensitive to the international criticism of the affair.

There is apparently considerable to be urged on both sides of the question raised by the Senate amendments to the pending arbitration treaties. The President contends that to amend the treaties will practically make them valueless, as it would be necessary hereafter to have a special treaty for every subject proposed to be arbitrated. Many senators contend, however, that while this may be true, yet the ratification of these treaties will commit the United States to the general policy of arbitration. The Southern Senators favored the amendment, as they want to make sure that no old claims against their States for repudiated loans held by foreigners will become the subject of arbitration. Some Senators also insisted on the amendment so as to protect the Senate's rights against the executive encroachment they see in the President's attitude.

British Disappointed.
London, Feb. 14.—The announcement of President Roosevelt's determination to proceed no further with the arbitration treaties in consequence of the senate's action in substituting the term "treaty" for "agreement" is received with some degree of surprise, but with no evidence of concern in official circles in London. Disappointment was expressed at the foreign office, but officials there said they were confident that a treaty upon which all parties could agree would be signed ultimately. While there is every evidence that officials regret this second failure to secure an arbitration treaty with the United States, the matter is not treated as cause for the slightest uneasiness.

Senator Tillman Ill.
Philadelphia, Feb. 14.—United States Senator Tillman of South Carolina arrived here in company with his physician, Dr. J. W. Babcock of Columbia, S. C. Senator Tillman says he has been in ill health and that he came here for treatment. He says he will not enter a sanitarium, and states that his physician says he is suffering from grip, but the senator says he thinks it is something more serious than the grip.

Three Persons Asphyxiated.
Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 14.—The dead bodies of Mrs. Mary Armstrong, aged about 40 years; Mrs. Cynthia Ford, 35, a sister of Mrs. Armstrong, and Mabel Armstrong, 15, were found in their house in Maple street. They had been asphyxiated by natural gas.

Steamer Released.
Tokyo, Feb. 14.—The British steamer Eastray, which was captured off Hokkaido Jan. 7, has been released, it having developed that her seizure was a mistake. She was carrying a cargo of coal from Hokkaido to Singapore.

Ninety Persons Perished.
London, Feb. 14.—A dispatch from Kobe, Japan, to the Express, reports that the small steamer Natori-kaga collided with the harbor works at Osaka and sank, and that 94 persons were drowned.

A Chance For Story Tellers.

Still the cry goes up from the publishers that there is a dearth of short stories in the market. A glance at some of the periodicals of the day gives tangible evidence that there is some sort of a shortage affecting the tables of contents. It is not so easy as it looks to write a good short story, even one "as good as some that get printed."

Lectures to aspiring young authors upon the kind of story to write are useless. Each aspirant for the publisher's check and literary fame will write the kind of story that is in him or her, and that, by the way, is just the kind and the only kind wanted by publisher or reader.

The way of writing a story, or of putting, is subject to variations, and in that phase of authorship the beginner has everything to learn. It is not always best, perhaps never, to set out to write a story as a maiden effort in literature. Expression is the art to be mastered, and important features of that art are often mastered by fugitive writing for the newspapers, for friendly correspondents and for readings before literary gatherings. A good looking bunch of manuscript wins half the battle by creating a good impression offhand. It is certain to be read by the editor, and for that the beginner ought to be grateful.

The Creed of the Russian Peasantry.

Catharine Breshkovsky, a Russian philanthropist and revolutionist, summarizes the economic and social creed of the Russian peasantry as follows:

The Russian peasants say that justice (or God) demands that all human beings should be happy; that they shall have means of enjoying life without doing evil to others and without being oppressed by them. But beyond the land and values are held enough to believe that they know not only what constitutes truth, but also the means of putting it in practice here on earth. They say, for instance, that a good God has created man; that he gave man with life the right to enjoy all that is created by him for the benefit of mankind. So the land, with all its riches, forests and streams, all this belongs to all of us because it is the work of God.

This is the economic aspect of truth to the Russian peasants. As to the moral side, it consists in never doing evil to one's neighbor and in aiding him in his toil. Daily toil does not frighten the Russian laborer; he loves the land and values his work, which makes his life pleasanter and more intelligent. This is the real Russian peasant.

While the above is an ultra partisan and optimistic view, it nevertheless agrees in essentials with what is already believed of the masses of Russia. Considering the immense preponderance of the peasantry in the population, if they ever get the chance of putting their principles into general practice the world may yet turn to the east for a glimpse of the first social millennium.

Work and Play at College.

Although this is a college booming age, the meaning of a college career seems to be an unsettled question. President Thwing of the Western Reserve university is really found to be on the defensive while suggesting in the North American Review that a college course should be largely a matter of lectures, lessons, library and laboratory. He says: "Going to college and working little is good; going to college and working much is better, very good. The college student should, indeed, be other than a student. But he should at least be a student and a hard one too."

An inside view of college life which now and then leaks out is that only those students who work their way are really benefited by a college career. Of course the man who works his way and gets the worth of his time and effort cannot do much besides work. The much talked up social life of the place cannot mean anything to him. If he gets all that there is worth while solely by hard work, those who skip the hard work naturally come out with a poor showing in valuable results.

Carnegie has endowed public libraries in every state and territory in the Union excepting Rhode Island, Mississippi, Delaware, Arkansas, Texas and Alaska. According to statistics gathered by Mr. Horace White, New York is the most highly blessed of all, and 55 per cent of the people of the state may consult the Carnegie volumes if they choose. As an incentive to use these advantages it might be well for professional and other well read people to refer the young to the libraries instead of answering offhand questions which can be solved by delving in books. Knowledge easily gained is quickly forgotten.

One Canadian temper has got into the "sour grapes" state over a discussion about the lack of a "national literature" in Dominion. Professor Pelham Edgar of Toronto says that a national literature is too narrow and petty and that the new voice in literature is a world voice. Among the world voices Canada already has a showing in Bliss Carman, the poet, and Sir Gilbert Parker, author of "The Right of Way."

The winter has been favorable for skating in many localities, and skaters have turned out in full force. As usual, Canada sets the fashion in fancy figures on the ice. Any new ideas which are not imported by visitors back and forth are brought over by skating teachers, who are always alert for novelties.

AMUSEMENTS

Although a German born in Austria, Mme. Schumann-Heink has an ever-green spot in her memory for Napoleon, as she has for all men and women who do things, and during the rehearsal of her comic opera, "Love's Lottery," she balked several times at some words which Author Stanislaus Stange gave her to speak in the character of Lina, the buxom, good-natured proprietress of the fashionable laundry at Deanswold village, Eng., in the time of George III. It must be remembered that Lina is a German, who moved to Deanswold because she inherited a bit of property there, and she has her own troubles with the language. Sergeant Bob Trivet, the head of the King's constabulary at Deanswold, is very much in love with Lina and wants to marry her. They love each other, but have the quarrels and spats usual to ardent and jealous couples. During one of these misunderstandings Sergeant Trivet says to Lina: "Oh! these Germans, these Germans!"

"So, so! these Germans, it is?" cries Lina, mockingly. "I'd have you to know that German's Kaiser is greater than England's King. In everything, in battles—"

"Yes, in battles, too?" asks Trivet, aping Lina's tone and manner. "How about the battle of Waterloo?"

"Ach! don't talk foolishness," says Lina. "General Blucher won the battle of Waterloo!"

"Blucher, Blucher!" yells Trivet in tones of greatest derision. "Pray, what was Wellington doing there?"

"Waiting for Blucher," retorts Lina quietly, and the English soldier, in a rage, rushes out of sight and out of hearing of Mme. Schumann-Heink's infectious laugh.

The seat sale for Love's Lottery at the Auditorium tomorrow night is unusually large.

TWO SEAT SALES.

Seats will be put on sale tomorrow morning for "Out of the Fold" and "Uncle Josh Spruceby," matinee and night.

FIELDS' MINSTRELS.

To a matchless minstrel program, the A. G. Field Greater Minstrels will present as an adjunct, "The Astonishing Avolos." This duo of artists will present their incomparable specialty, the perpendicular bars. Ascending polished perpendicular bars, their bodies extended horizontally, the muscularity and dexterity bewilders the spectator. They throw double and twisting somersaults from the apex of the bars to the stage and do unerring swings from bar to bar. The act is sui generis. Auditorium, one night, Monday, February 20.

"UNCLE JOSH SPRUCEBY."

Next Saturday, matinee and night, "Uncle Josh Spruceby" will play a return engagement here. This season the big show comes to us better than ever, and notwithstanding this fact the prices have been lowered, popular prices will prevail and surely there is no one who has ever heard of the great comedy, that will fail to be in line when the time comes for the opening of the sale of seats. There has been no cheapening of the attraction, it is in the prices only. The managers of this popular show recognize the fact that there has been a reduction in prices in nearly every branch of business and they have concluded to drop in line and give their customers the same grade of goods at reduced rates. This is a first-class company of twenty thoroughly capable actors. The scenery is all new and the work of the best scenic artists in the country. We do not make a practice of making very enthusiastic advance notices of coming attractions, but we have seen the play of "Uncle Josh Spruceby" and we can say, patronize this entertainment and you will not regret it. Prices, 25c, 35c and 50c. Seats on sale Wednesday.

"FAUST" IS COMING.

If it was not for the educated and refined class of people, such plays as "Faust" would go begging. Is that, then, not proof enough that there is really true merit in the grand, old piece? See Porter J. White in it. Coming soon.

ACCIDENTS OF THE STAGE.

It oftentimes happens that accidents occur upon the stage during the course of a performance which, while they amuse the audience, are terribly disconcerting to the actor. The writer collects seeing the big black horse, Jack, in "Shenandoah" put his head through the window in the first act, and getting beyond his mistress, calmly take a large mouthful of ferns from a jardiniere, which was filled with them for purposes of stage decoration, during which time the hero was trying to get through a love scene. Naturally, the love scene was absolutely ruined, but the audience thought it intensely funny.

Louis James, who is with the all-star cast in "The Two Orphans," was starring with Fred Ward last season in a play called "Alexander the Great." It was at the Salt Lake Theater that this incident occurred and while the audience got more than their money's worth, the actor cut a sorry figure. In one of the scenes Alexander was supposed to load a starved and frozen army through a mountain pass, in the midst of a terrible snowstorm.

The production was replete with mechanical effects, and the snowstorm, instead of being worked from the flies in the good, old-fashioned way, was produced by an electrical device—a motor and a fan. Through inadvertence, or possibly design, the stage mechanic, who had charge of that snowstorm, started the snow machine the wrong way, and instead of coming down, according to the best known laws of gravitation, the snow took a decided upward flight before it started back to earth. The audience was several minutes understanding the situation, but it finally dawned on them, and in the midst of one of Mr. James' most impressive scenes a titter started, which rapidly developed into an uncontrollable burst of mirth. The entire audience was laughing and applauding at the same time. Fortunately, the stage manager of the company "sized up" the situation immediately and rang down the curtain. Needless to say it was the last performance of that stage mechanic.

"The Two Orphans" all-star cast, will be one of the early attractions at the Auditorium.

A VALENTINE

Today, perhaps, my charming lass,
The valentines which come to you,
Will tell of loyalty and staid,
From friends, the many, staunch and true.
My wife to these I know will be
But as a rain-drip on the ocean.
Or as a sand grain on the beach.
Yet, may be, it will place in motion
The reeds of friendship which I prize.
To play sweet melodies, rich and rare,
Sweet melodies like Aeolian strains,
Tuned by the fairies of the air.
My words are not what they should be,
No note of weight, or force, or strength
To laud or praise these half enough;
My verses have but meagre length
When I make bold to chant or sing,
To you a strain in rhyming lore;
In this attempt, oh, pardon me,
And Muse, come let thy soul out-pour,
In grandest rhythm, sweetest lays;
Let what you say be rare, sublime;
Speak all I have in soul and heart
To this dear, radiant, maid of mine,
Say to her she's a queen of queens,
With ruling power none can resist,
A mein of Juno, face more fair,
Than that of Venus, I insist,
Tell her, her eyes are orbs of fire
And sparkle like the stars of heaven
That they are gems more rare I ween
Than those which to the kings are given.
Tell her all this, aye, even more,
Say that my words are featureless
That I have feelings in my soul
Which mortal words can ne'er express,
Say these have filled my heart so full
That I'm now poor with plenty's horn;
Go tell her that in my life's sky,
A star of hope has late been born;
Which struggles, and will not be stilled,
And waits relentlessly in tears
Which oh! if it should brighter yet
Would be my sun of future years.
Go Muse, fulfill thy mission well,
Let no stone lie untouched, unturned
Till this secret you've made known,
And come to me in smiles or spurned.

Mrs. McFee Tells How Father John's Medicine Saved Her Life When The Doctors Gave Her Up.
"Many times I have wished I could stand on the housetop and tell the world what a blessing Father John's Medicine has been to my family. All my life I've been doctoring. I had systematic catarrh, and four years ago pneumonia made a wreck of me. Oh, how I suffered. God above knows, I brought my family to want paying doctors' bills. My bureau was full of medicine bottles. I have had six doctors, but my cough was killing me. Every few weeks I had hemorrhages. My doctors gave me up, and my friends looked for me to die. For my children's sake I hoped and prayed to get well. I saw home and money gone, but no relief. I thank God for directing my attention to Father John's Medicine. I can do all my work and feel like a new person since taking it. It is a blessing, may it be to all who suffer, is the wish of one it has helped. (Signed) Mrs. H. THE BOND MENACE

When it was said: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," one of the greatest of political truths was compressed into seven words.

The insidious attacks upon the rights of the citizens, are the most dangerous, because they are always plausibly disguised, and the public liberties always fall when undermined by cunning forms of unnecessary and unjust taxation.

Unnecessary taxation is robbery with no excuse attached. Unjust taxation is generally clothed in plausible excuses.

Auditor of State Walter D. Guilbert in an official report recently made, gave the increase of local bonds in the state for the preceding year at something over $13,000,000 and the total bonded indebtedness of the state at approximately $126,000,000.

These figures should startle the people of Ohio and cause them to unite against the danger of overbonding communities and municipalities.

Over a million dollars increase in bonds each month, means the withdrawal of tens of thousands of dollars monthly from the people, to be carried out of the state and lost forever to Ohio's productive industries.

Mr. Guilbert's figures probably do not give the full extent of the local bonds. The increase which goes on daily, has probably raised the amount to $135,000,000 at this writing.

At all events the local bonded indebtedness of Ohio, made since 1894, is twice as great as all the state bonds issued from 1803 to 1905, inclusive, and the $13,000,000 to $18,000,000 of such bonds issued since 1903 exceeds the bonds issued in the ten years when Ohio's great canal system was built.

The politicians who have controlled the legislature and state offices for the past ten years tell the people that these local bonds do not affect the state in any way.

If you sleep and eat and move between two sick people, your own strength and health will soon be destroyed. If you are forced to live between two bond tax ravaged communities your own prosperity will quickly disappear.

Make sure of your interests by clipping the wings of the cormorants who roost in the state house and the legislative chambers.

OIL WELL

Makes Very Good Showing at Bladensburg

OWNERS REMAIN VERY QUIET

Premises Guarded and Nobody is Allowed Near the Well—People are Much Excited.

Bladensburg, O., Feb. 14.—Although the Logan company's representatives in the field absolutely refuse to give out any information concerning results obtained at the Blystone well, which was drilled in late Saturday afternoon, it is certain that the well is a strong oil producer.

The derrick has been going up to such a height that nothing could be seen within can be observed, and guards keep all persons not possessed of the "password" at a distance of a quarter of a mile away. The one man outside the company's force allowed to approach the well is the representative of the Standard Oil company, and he, of course, will not divulge anything.

The well was completed Saturday and will be cased at once. It should have been completed two weeks ago, but drilling was suspended for some time by an accident which collapsed the casing, which was removed after much delay and tedious work. This accident occurred just when the sand had been proving, and the delay was most provoking, as the lease held by the company was ready to expire at that very time. However, after the casing had been removed drilling was immediately resumed.

This whole section is aroused over the results obtained, and it is said that other wells will be started soon. This well marks the territory plainly, as it was located with reference to the McKee producer, the company desiring to test the scope of the sand. The McKee well is reported to do better than "sixty" barrels per day. So far this output has been utilized in operating at the Hall and Blystone wells, although immense tanks have already been erected on the site.

All day Sunday the gaseous vapors arising from the Blystone well could be seen fully a half mile distant. The guards employed by the company are taking no chances with those who are endeavoring to get a "smell," and the day detailing is relieved by another force which does duty all night.

MOLDERS' STRIKE

Champion Iron Works Men Quit Because Company Hired Non-Union Men.

Kenton, O., Feb. 14.—The molders at the big Champion Iron Works have gone on a strike because the company continued to hire non-union molders. A generalistic fight between the unionists and non-unionists occurred before the men went out.

GRANVILLE NEWS

Granville, O., Feb. 14.—On Monday evening Prof. R. S. Colwell delivered an interesting and instructive lecture on "French Cathedrals," in Recital Hall, before the Social Culture club. The new lantern slide machine belonging to the University, was used for the first time by Prof. Colwell to illustrate his lecture. The pictures were all taken by Prof. Colwell himself, and were very beautiful. It was through Prof. Colwell's efforts that this slide machine has been purchased and placed in Recital Hall for the use of the University, and all his friends appreciate the interest he has taken in the matter. The slides are fine ones, and the machine, as first tried, proved equally fine.

Miss Frances Johnson of Parkersburg, W. Va., returned to her home today, after a pleasant visit with Granville friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Topping left for Zanesville, Marietta and Columbus today in the interest of missions, and will attend a convention in each place. Mr. and Mrs. Topping are missionaries in Japan, and are spending the winter in Granville.

Miss Mabel Butterfield entertained a number of her friends in a most delightful manner at her home on last Thursday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Frances Johnson, of Parkersburg.

Miss Eva Johnson of Columbus, who has been visiting the friends in the village during the past week, left for her home on Tuesday morning, after having had a fine visit.

BREACH OF PROMISE

Suit Is Compromised—Florence Eversole Said to Have Received $300 From Cupp.

Lancaster, O., Feb. 14.—The second trial of Florence M. Eversole against Attorney David M. Cupp of Pleasantville, for $5,000, for alleged breach of promise, was called for trial in common pleas court Monday. But at the noon recess, before the cross-examination of the plaintiff had been completed, a settlement was effected satisfactory to both parties and the case was dismissed.

It is understood from good authority that the defendant had offered the plaintiff $300 to settle the case and it is said she received about this sum with the further agreement however, that each side would pay their own costs.

Says She Was Married—Both Married Before and Now the Mixup is a Bad One.

Zanesville, O., Feb. 14.—Mrs. Edward Shoman, at Coshocton, said that at the point of a revolver and under Henry A. Johnston's threat to kill her, she married Johnston at Birmingham, Ala., last December 20.

Edward Shoman says he does not want a divorce from his wife, and Mrs. Johnston, who says she knows nothing of the whereabouts of her husband, does not want to prosecute Mrs. Shoman for bigamy, because it would necessarily bring her husband within the pale of the law. She doesn't want a divorce, either.

SUDDEN END

To Suit For Damages Brought Against T. & O. C. Company By Man Hurt at Granville.

Lancaster, O., Feb. 14.—The $25,000 damage case of Frank Hilliard against the Toledo & Ohio Central Railway company for loss of a leg in an accident at Granville, while working for a sash as brakeman, was brought to a sudden termination.

When the plaintiff's side rested the defense made a motion that the jury be instructed to bring in a verdict for the defendant on the alleged grounds that the plaintiff had not made out a case.

A first trial the plaintiff was awarded by the jury $200. A motion for a new trial has been filed.

Several of the London hospitals have on their books the names and addresses of many men and women who have undertaken to sell portions of their article, whenever the necessity arises, and it is said that quite a regular traffic is now being done in the buying and selling of human skins.

Moving pavements, underground to connect the East and West Ends of New York, are contemplated. The scheme provides for two platforms, one moving at the rate of nine miles an hour, and the other at four, capable of carrying 47,000 passengers an hour.

ZANESVILLE

Hon. H. C. Van Voorhis Elected Bank President

A MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

Granville Man Among the Speakers—An Adamsville Bride—Man Killed by Train.

Zanesville, O., Feb. 14.—The directors of the Old Citizens National bank met last night to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Willis Bailey.

Hon. H. C. Van Voorhis, who was the vice president of the bank, was chosen president; S. A. Weller was elected vice president to succeed Mr. Van Voorhis, and Willis A. Bailey was elected a director to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father.

Twenty years ago last month, when only 23 years old, Mr. Van Voorhis who is the brother of S. F. Van Voorhis of Newark, was first made president of the Citizens National bank. After eight years of continuous service in that capacity, Mr. Van Voorhis was elected to congress where he has served 12 years, and now through the coincidental closing of his last term in congress and the death of Mr. Bailey, after a lapse of a score of years he again assumes the duties of president of this well-known institution.

Granville Man Speaks.

A missionary conference of more than passing interest opened at the Market Street Baptist church this afternoon. Themes of church will be after discussed by noted men from abroad. The conference will close Wednesday noon.

The order of service for this afternoon and evening follows: At 2 p. m., "The Content of the Open Scripture." Rev. A. S. Carman, Granville, Ohio. At 2:30 p. m., "Mabed in Soul Winning." Rev. H. C. Mabed, D. D., Boston, Mass. At 3:15 p. m., there will be a "children's meeting," conducted by Mrs. Henry Topping.

Perhaps the evening session will command the greatest attention. Two men of large experience and marked ability will deliver addresses. At 7:30 p. m., Prof. Henry Topping, of Tokyo, Japan, will speak on "The Sunrise Kingdom." At 8 p. m., Dr. H. C. Mabed will deliver an address on "The White Peril."

Killed in Railway Yard.

James McLaughlin, a former resident of this city, was killed yesterday in the yards of the Little Miami railway at Cincinnati. The sad intelligence was received by his brother, Charles McLaughlin, chief engineer at the waterworks power house, last evening.

Saloon Keeper Arrested.

Upon his own recognition, Charles J. Coyle, saloonkeeper on Fourth street was released from police court where four charges stand against him. These four are for violating the Sunday closing ordinance, or for keeping his place open last Sabbath, two for selling intoxicating liquors to minors and one for allowing a minor in his place of business.

An Adamsville Bride.

Without the knowledge of any of her friends, Miss Anna Ross, living three miles from Adamsville, was carried off in Iowa last night, a willing Valentine bride, the Lechnivar in the case being Mr. J. C. Pince, of Creston, Iowa, a retired business man.

Wireless telegraph messages have been sent from Kansas City to Cleveland, a distance of 725 miles, without relaying. This is said to be the longest distance overland ever covered.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of soil—of sunshine—and of atmosphere—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth?

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart. You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and rubbing in vasoline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out. Scalp disease destroys the germ, and healthy hair is the sure result.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Won't Make No Mistake If You Follow This Newark Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your health. If you suspect your kidneys—if you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it is time to act, and no time to experiment. Use a remedy which is known to be safe and sure. Doan's Kidney Pills is that remedy, and if you wish to be cured of kidney trouble without experimenting, do not fail to use it.

P. Litchy, commission merchant of 39 South 4th St., Newark, O., says: "I have had no occasion to use any kidney medicine since 1896, and therefore think more than ever of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me eight years ago and I made a statement for publication at that time recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. This statement I will repeat for the benefit of other sufferers from kidney trouble."

"For several years I was distressed and annoyed with pain in the back just over the kidneys, and whenever I stood or tried to do anything the trouble became acute. Treatment had failed to bring me relief, and at last I laid aside the prescriptions I had been using and went to Crayton's drug store for a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of this remedy proved so effective that my back has been sound ever since I used Doan's Kidney Pills eight years ago. I therefore have no hesitation in recommending them to others."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

MAY DESERT ADDICKS

Good Authority Says the Union Republicans Will Quit the Gasman and Vote For Dupont.

Dover, Del., Feb. 14.—It is announced on good authority that eight of the Union Republican assemblymen will leave J. Edward Addicks during this week and cast their votes for T. Coleman Dupont of Wilmington, the millionaire president of the Dupont Powder company, for senator. This agreement, it is said, was reached after conferences had been held by the members concerned in the movement. This will be the outcome of the recent rumors that have been current on the subject of a break, and it will mark the first desertion from the Addicks ranks since the session of 1895. It has not been announced on what day the break will be made.

Public is Aroused.

The public is aroused to a knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic, Electric Bitters, for sick stomach, liver and kidneys. Mary H. Walters, of 545 St. Clair ave., Columbus, O., writes: "For several months, I was given up to die. I had fever and ague, my nerves were wrecked; I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' drugs, that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters, I obtained relief, and in a short time I was entirely cured." Guaranteed at Hall's Drug Store, price 50c.

ARTILLERY DUELS

Along the Front in the Far East—The Cold Is Followed By Mild, Sunny Weather.

General Kuroki's Headquarters, via Fusen, Feb. 14.—The Japanese artillery, which seldom replied to the Russian bombardment during the preceding three months, has become more active, and artillery duels along some portions of the front occur almost daily. The exceedingly cold weather of the past fortnight has been followed by mild and sunny weather, and the snow is melting rapidly. Altogether the winter has been much less severe than expected. The Japanese have endured the cold as well as the Russians.

Settlers Want Money.

Berlin, Feb. 14.—German settlers in Samoa petitioned the Reichstag to do something toward obtaining for them payment of an indemnity from the United States and Great Britain under the Arbitration award of King Oscar of Sweden and Norway Oct. 14, 1902, which it is affirmed still remains unpaid, the settlers in the meanwhile being unable to rebuild their houses or develop their plantations.

Greaser's Request Refused. Philadelphia, Feb. 14.—The supreme court refused to reopen the case of Samuel Greason, colored, of Reading, who together with Mrs. Kate Edwards was convicted of murdering the late Mrs. Greason's husband in the barbershop, which meets in Harrisburg on Wednesday afternoon, the woman and Greason will be hanged Thursday.

Minister Located.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 14.—A telegram has been received here from Montgomery, Ala., saying that Rev. E. Bonar of Richmond, Va., assistant secretary of the Baptist foreign mission board, reported to have mysteriously disappeared, has been located in Princeton, N. J., where he is ill.

"Ellis Defends Anti-Trust Law." Columbus, O., Feb. 14.—In a brief filed in the supreme court in the case of the state against Gage, a Delaware coal dealer, Attorney General Ellis came to the defense of the Valentine-Stewart anti-trust law. The validity of the criminal section of the law is involved. The case originated in Delaware county, where the circuit court declared the criminal section to be unconstitutional. Mr. Ellis in his brief points out that the court has held the act in general to be valid; that now to declare its punitive clause, which is attacked, unconstitutional, would be equivalent to instituting a legal but denying the right to punish the person responsible for the punishment.

No Appointment Made. Cleveland, O., Feb. 14.—The matter of the appointment of a trustee for the Autman company of Canton, O., creditors was argued before Referee in Bankruptcy Harold Rounaldson. HADLEY OF YALE

In Speech at Chicago Talks of "Presidency of Politics" to Latin School Students.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—A plea for "ideal American citizenship," with President Roosevelt pointed out as an example who had "fitted the presidency out of politics," was made by President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale university in an address before the Chicago Latin school. Money-making, he said, was not the only aim for which students should be educated. Broad-mindedness, he pleaded, was a broader purpose which should be set by all educators.

THE GREAT EPOCH OF MARRIAGE

If the first time the greatest event in your married lives is about to occur, how marvellous, how wondrous up in it you find yourselves.

You try to overlook, but in vain, that element of uncertainty and danger that you have been led to expect from the experience of those mothers and fathers who have struggled through this ordeal in ignorance of what it is, and what it does. If at this time every expectant mother and wife might know of this greatest of boons, devised for the express purpose of alleviating and dispelling the suffering and consequent danger of childbirth, how quickly would all doubt and worry be dissipated.

Mother's Friend is an invaluable liniment for external massage, through whose potent agency countless mothers have been enabled to experience the joy of parturition for the first time without danger to themselves or their offspring.

LINGAFELTER TRIAL.

alleges that the two men testified that Robert C. Lingafelter was at his office on Saturday, February 4th, and was seen by the said Burkholz and McQueston, whereas as a matter of fact said Lingafelter was not at his office on that day. The alleged perjury is charged in connection with the testimony given by the detectives hereon last Tuesday, upon the question of continuing the Robert C. Lingafelter case, when they testified that on the Saturday in question they had seen Lingafelter and he looked as well as when they arrested him last September. It was first said that Mrs. Lingafelter had sworn to the affidavits, but later it developed that the defendant himself subscribed to the documents.

The warrants were served on the two detectives in the Sheriff's office, and "Squire Clark held a session of court in chambers. Both men pleaded not guilty and were bound over to the April grand jury in the sum of $200 each. Bond was given and the two men were released, Chief of Police Dermody of Mt. Vernon, and Sheriff Shellenberger becoming sureties for their appearance.

Calls It An Outrage.

L. C. Stillwell, prosecuting attorney of Knox county, who is assisting Licking county's prosecutor, Mr. Fitzgibbon, characterized the arrest as an outrage, and said:

"You may quote me as saying that this arrest is nothing less than an outrage, and was done merely to discredit the testimony of these two men when they shall appear before the jury in this case. It was intended to arrest Burkholz and McQueston as soon as they had given their testimony, but I demanded that the warrants should be served at once."

Prosecution's Witnesses.

The court room was crowded to its utmost capacity Monday afternoon, a large number of women being interested spectators. Judge Coyner's decision, allowing testimony as to other forgeries to go in as evidence in this case was announced and the examination of Flora Wood Deane was continued. It was at once seen that the prosecution expected to prove that certain signatures to receipts for money were forgeries.

Mrs. Deane testified that Mrs. Lingafelter generally waited on her when she transacted any business at the office of the Homestead Building Association. She always took her pass-book with her and this book was all the receipt she ever had for money paid in, or the only evidence of any drawn out by her. She was shown a signature on a stub receipt book purporting to be hers, but she positively testified that it was not. This was for $274.

Theodore Taylor a Witness.

Theodore Taylor was the next witness and testified that he now owned certain certificates of stock in the Homestead, upon which he had not received any payments except from the receiver since the collapse of the association. He testified that his name, signed to a receipt for $200, was not genuine, and that he had never received that or any other amount of money on said certificate except as stated from the receiver.

R. C. Lumm on the Stand.

R. E. Lumm's testimony was to the effect that his name signed to an alleged receipt was not in his handwriting.

Thos. D. Lloyd's Testimony.

Thomas D. Lloyd, a laborer, residing in West Newark, testified that he owned certificate No. 1175, for $400, and is still in possession of it. He stated that a signature shown him, for a dividend amounting to $18.00, was genuine, but another signature to a receipt for $200 was pronounced by him to be in another's handwriting.

Mrs. Whitecamp a Witness.

Mrs. Marietta Whitecamp, wife of W. L. Whitecamp, the Newark hardware merchant, identified a pass-book shown her, as the one used in her dealings with the Homestead. She stated that her signature appearing on certain receipts were not written by her, one being for $30, another for $10. She also stated that she had made no deposits in the Homestead except those to be applied on a loan of $1,400.

Mrs. Carrie Buehler.

Mrs. Carrie Buehler's testimony was to the effect that several signatures shown her were not in her handwriting. She more than broke even with Attorney Owen who cross-examined her, and nothing new was brought out.

Mrs. Hattie M. Smith.

Mrs. Hattie M. Smith was the next witness. The first question asked by Mr. Fitzgibbon was: "Did you ever have any dealings with the Homestead Building Association?"

"Yes sir, I did."

"You're sorry now, aren't you?" asked the prosecutor.

The court ruled this question out before the witness could answer.

Mrs. Smith identified several signatures shown her as genuine and others she stated were not hers.

Mr. Owen's first question upon cross-examination was: "How old are you?"

"None of your business," flashed the witness and the court held that Mr. Owen's question was irrelevant. She also testified that several signatures shown her were not genuine.

Mrs. Michael Taft.

Mrs. Sarah Taft, wife of Michael Taft, was the next. She stated that a signature to a receipt for $24.30 dividend on $800 of stock was genuine, but that another for $200 was not. She testified that the certificates of stock were never out of her possession, but admitted on cross-examination that at one time she had hypothecated some for a $200 loan, secured from the Newark Savings bank.

Mrs. Josephine Armstrong.

Mrs. Josephine Armstrong's testimony was to the effect that she had $800 of Homestead paid-up stock. She testified that her name appearing with that of William Armstrong upon two receipts, were not written by her, and that she never knew or heard of any William Armstrong.

Judge Coyner cautioned the jury, the afternoon's proceedings were over and court adjourned until Tuesday morning.

IN THE FIELD OF SPORT

GAME TONIGHT

HOCH'S LATEST

Declares Matrimonial Ventures Were Financial Not Love Affairs.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Adolph Hoch made a statement that his matrimonial ventures were not love affairs. "I want to correct one impression of me given to the public," he continued. "All are led to believe I am a regular Romeo. I am not. I did not love any of my wives. I have no use for women. It was purely a business proposition with me. When I found they had money I went after that. When I got it I left them. They had no charms for me. I advertised for women over 45. I found they were easier to separate from their money. Flattery was my chief in stock. You can win a woman quicker that way than any other."

HOSPITAL MEETING

Committee to Nominate Trustees Appointed—Will Report at Meeting on February 21.

The adjourned meeting of the Newark Hospital association was held Monday evening in Taylor hall. Mr. J. A. Chilcote, one of the trustees, presided. The annual report of the treasurer was read by Mrs. Woodbridge.

As a matter of electing a new board of trustees is a very important one, a nominating committee was appointed to report at an adjourned meeting to be held in the council chamber, Tuesday evening, February 21. This committee consists of Mrs. F. Van Voorhis, Mrs. W. H. Davis and Mr. H. D. Woodbridge. It is earnestly hoped that there will be a large attendance at this meeting of those interested in the hospital work. Let all hitch make their plans to be present.

MRS. J. R. DAVIES.

Secretary.

In some parts of Siam a girl who reaches a certain age without marrying is labeled and placed in a privileged class under the special care of the King, who binds himself to find a husband for them all. His method is delightfully simple. A prisoner in any one of the Siamese jails may gain his pardon and release by marrying one of the ineligible class. Whether he is already married or not is of no great consequence for in Siam a man is not restricted to one wife.

During the siege of Port Arthur 250 per cent of the garrison were put hors de combat. This apparently impossible feat was made possible by the fact that so many wounded men returned to duty from the hospitals.

THE HALL OF FAME.

Lovett Fleke of Portland, Conn., although ninety years old, has recently suffered slight illness has never been ill a day in his life.

William H. Taft, secretary of war, weighs 220 pounds. His predecessor in office, Elihu Root, tips the scales at only half that figure.

President Eliot of Harvard university has been elected a corresponding member of the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences of the Institute of France.

It is reported in Paris that an American, Mr. James H. Hyde, will shortly purchase the Paris Figure. Mr. Hyde is a vice president of a big insurance company.

Admiral Togo received his early naval training on the British man-of-war Worcester. It was commanded by Captain John Henderson Smith, R. N., who died a few days ago.

Elmer J. Burkett, the new United States senator from Nebraska, will be the youngest member of that body. He is thirty-seven years old, four years younger than Bailey of Texas and five years younger than Beveridge of Indiana.

President Roosevelt, under the personal recommendation of Archbishop Farley, has appointed Rev. Joseph M. McGinty of New York to be a naval chaplain. The stalwart young priest is six feet tall, light complexioned and an athlete.

Baron John F. von Muegge of Germany is a policeman in Milwaukee. By the terms of his mother's will he cannot inherit her money until he has actually served ten years in an official capacity. All but six months of his term is over.

Policeman Daniel B. Aborn, the tallest officer on the police force of Hartford, Conn., has married Margaret J. Noonan. They will perhaps be the tallest couple in Hartford, as Mr. Aborn is six feet seven and a half inches tall and his wife is six feet.

Bert C. Buffum, professor of agriculture and horticulture in the University of Wyoming, has just been elected a member of the American Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science, connected with the American Society for the Advancement of Science.

Gossip Heard In the Greenroom

MAY ROBSON, who is now playing the role of Princess Allie in "It Happened in Nordanland," has a pretty level head, and the fact served her in good stead when she made her first stage appearance. She was a young widow in New York, trying to make a living painting menu cards. The fad went out, and, at a loss what to do, she entered a theatrical agency one day. She secured an engagement, but was immediately released when the manager discovered she possessed no experience. Going back to the agency, she was told not to let it be known next time that she was inexperienced.

"But what am I to do when they ask me?" she demanded. "I am not very skilled in telling lies."

"Evade it," was the bland response. "You can manage it somehow."

So it came about that an opportunity arose for an ingenue for a new piece, "The Hoop of Gold," which was to be produced at the Grand Opera House in Brooklyn. Nothing was said about previous experience. When Leon Vincent, the stage manager, said to the amateur, "Take the stage," she looked at him helplessly. If he had told her to reach down the moon she would have had about as much of an idea how to go about the process. She did not move, whereupon the old gentleman walked up to her and said:

"How long have you been on the stage?"

The crucial moment had come. She twisted her fingers in and out and finally began, "About—about—"

"About twenty minutes," Mr. Vincent answered.

"Well, I was going to say fifteen," she admitted, already seeing herself out on the sidewalk again; but, to her surprise, the good old gentleman simply told her to remain after the rest had gone and then gave her a little private coaching in theatrical parlance. At the next rehearsal she made a respectable showing as an ingenue.

Robert B. Mantell, who is touring in a repertoire of Shakespearean plays this season and winning much praise for his work in this class of drama, won familiarity with a large number of Shakespearean parts during his first years on the stage. He was telling one day of the hard school in which an aspirant for histrionic honors has to learn his task in England. "In the first eight years of my professional career I played not less than 750 parts, in the last six only seven or eight," said Mantell. "When I was knocking about through Great Britain with a little company, playing the legitimate and standard drama, I played as high as a dozen parts in one evening."

"Oh-h-h-h-h, Bob, come off four or five at least," pleaded one of his auditors.

"Not even one, my boy; not a single chappie of the dozen will I cut off," replied Mantell, "and if you'll jot 'em down I'll reel 'em off to you. The night I did this sextuple doubling act was somewhere in the south of England, and the bill for the night was 'Richard III' and 'Robert Macaire.' In the first piece I played Richard, Radcliffe, the jailer, Tessie, Catesby and an officer, and in the last I thrilled 'em with my Cartouch, Caradox, Morris, and, and, and."

"That's only nine, quite enough, heaven knows," interrupted he with the pencil and paper. "quite enough, Bob, but we must have the other three, nevertheless, so trot 'em out."

"Well," said Mantell, "just who the other three were I cannot for the moment say, as I haven't the cast handy, but if you put it down as three officers it will fill out the dozen."

George Arliss, the English author and actor who made a hit as Zerkuri in "The Darling of the Gods," had rather an unusual experience one morning a year or two ago, when he picked up a Sunday paper and found in it a criticism by his own wife of his new play. The play was "There and Back," and his wife, known to theater goers as Florence Montgomery, played the leading part in it. In criticizing the play she wrote:

"The piece is by George Arliss, whom I am privileged to call husband. This, however, does not deter me from my purpose. Who has a better right to be severe with Mr. Arliss than myself?"

"As a husband he is everything he should be."

"As an author—but I will break it gently."

"I know it was just like a man to write 'There and Back' as it is and then call it by that absurd title. No woman would be satisfied with such an indefinite sort of name any more than she would have any patience with such a husband as the two spouses in the play. It isn't that I thought that I wish Mr. A. had let me write his piece."

I don't believe I could do it at all. As his critic or collaborator I might be a success. But an author—that is another thing."

In his reply Mr. Arliss received the last sentiment, intimating it was best there should be but one author in the Arliss family.

Robert T. Haines is soon to appear in a new play by his wife, Genevieve G. Haines. It is rather an unusual thing for an actor to have a wife who can write dramas and create roles for her husband to fill. Mr. Haines first had the experience of appearing in a play from his wife's pen when she sprang into fame as a playwright through the production of "Hearts Aflame." This drama, in which he took the leading role, scored an immediate success. Mrs. Haines is a beautiful woman, with a musical voice and charming manners. She does not look especially bookish and is devoted to athletic sports. Mr. Haines secured a release from Minnie Maddern Fiske, whose leading man he then was, in order to interpret the leading role in the drama which made Mrs. Haines' fame.

Norman Tharp, who plays Lord Duvort in "The Usurper," is an Englishman who is trying hard to be an American. He often finds the process painful, even expensive. He was complaining recently about being charged $4.75 for a bunch of violets in New York.

"Aha!" an American friend gloated. "They saw you coming and said: 'There's an English lobster. We'll trim him.'"

"Not at all, my dear boy, I assure you," said Tharp. "I talked broad and spat on the floor."

Francis Wilson, who is now playing in "Cousin Billy," is very successful in making others laugh, but sometimes the laugh has been on him. Upon one occasion he was called before the curtain to respond to most enthusiastic applause, and a superb bunch of American Beauty roses was handed to him over the footlights. He bowed his thanks and retired, and as he entered his dressing room opened a note which accompanied the flowers. It was concluded in very affectionate terms and invited him to go to supper. It seemed that through the stupidity of a florist's boy he had received a tribute which had been intended for one of the young ladies of his company.

Mr. Wilson is quite an accomplished linguist. For some time it was a mystery to his friends how he acquired a knowledge of so many languages. He had never had a French teacher, yet all at once he began to speak French like a native. A year or two later and German was at his finger tips; later again, he began to talk Italian as though to the language born. And then a friend solved the mystery. He had learned the languages from his dressers. It was remembered that for two seasons a French valet who spoke nothing but his native tongue had ministered to his dressing room wants. Then when Mr. Wilson's Parisian accent became thoroughly manuevered the Frenchman passed out and was no more seen. His successor was a German, and he, after a couple of seasons, was succeeded by an Italian.

Now the comedian's friends are wondering what sort of a dresser he will engage when he begins the study of Sanskrit.

The presence of mind exhibited by Heinrich Corried, manager of the Metropolitan Opera company, when an accident occurred on the stage of the opera house recently won him much praise. But for the calmness he displayed a panic among the audience might easily have resulted. When Mr. Corried succeeded Maurice Grau as manager of the performances of grand opera at the Metropolitan Opera House there were some who doubted his ability to fill a position of such importance. But his success has shown him equal to the task thrust upon him when the board of directors of the opera house called him away from the German playhouse on Irving place, which he had made the temple of German historic drama in New York, to assume the management of the leading opera company of America. Mr. Corried is a versatile HEINRICH CORRIED, genius, actor, manager, student, lecturer and business man. His attainments as a student have won him the degree of LL. D. He is a member of the committee on German languages and literature of Harvard university, and he has medals from Germany and Italy for attainments in the arts and sciences.

Many years ago as a weaver's apprentice Corried sat at his loom in an Alsatian village weaving the fabric by which he was to become a "meister." His loom played backward and forward through 3,300 threads in his loom. There were fifteen colors, and as they were blended they grew into a design that was to bear the title of "Faust and Marguerite."

When the last thread was laid in place it was found that not a stitch had been dropped. Thus Corried became a "meister," and the same painstaking care has characterized all his later work.

SELF RULE IN RUSSIA

Prof. Michailovitch on Empire's Ability to Govern Itself.

NO FEAR OF DISINTEGRATION.

Proofs of the Russian Nation's Fitness For Self Government Cited by the Professor—How the Peasants Greeted Reforms—Zemstvos May Be Regarded as the Forerunners of a Parliament.

The present revolt against the autocracy in Russia, says Professor Michailovitch in the New York American, has raised the question, is the Russian nation able to govern itself? I have met both here and in other countries men of high position and more than average knowledge of Russia who did not think that the people there at present deserve any other form of government than the one they have.

Intelligent Russians think different. Even M. Witte, once more the right hand of the czar, in his latest work, "Autonomy and Zemstvo," admits that he has not the slightest doubt of the ability of the Russian people to govern themselves, though he is opposed to the sudden granting of a complete constitution.

The Russian zemstvos are by no means composed of the lower classes. The majority of their members are officials who belong to the lower nobility, many of whom hold government positions. The zemstvos may indeed well be considered the forerunners of a Russian parliament.

There are also many who confound the Russian "tschinnoviks" with the Russian bureaucracy.

The fact is that it is far from that. Everybody who can claim a "tschin" holds any office under the government. Claim to "tschin" (rank) has everybody who has graduated from a higher educational institution. Every graduate from a high school, every officer who leaves the army to go into civil service, is, according to Russian law, given a "tschin," and in this way "tschin" stands rather for a certain amount of education than for what may be defined as rank. A person of noble birth has the privilege of obtaining a "tschin" easier and more quickly than a person of lower birth, so that a nobleman needs only have served a very short time in a government office to become a "tschinnovik."

Every clerk who has passed an examination becomes a "tschinnovik" and is thereby to a certain extent safe from arrest without a special warrant. All the members of the zemstvos are without exception "tschinnoviks," and many of them may even lay claim to the title of "excellency."

Those who consider the great Russian people an uneducated horde, without culture and education, apt to commit all kinds of excesses on the slightest provocation, are also very much mistaken.

It is true that the Russian moujik has been trampled upon and treated like cattle and that there are many who would still like to treat him in this manner, but it is also true that he has now a strong longing for education and strives to obtain it with all the stubborn energy which is part of his nature.

Everywhere where he is not oppressed and robbed he shows an unusual degree of tact, intelligence and pride and a glowing desire for freedom and independence. Do not more than 15,000,000 Russian subjects belonging to sects outside of the Orthodox church struggle continually for religious freedom?

Do not pamphlets, proclamations and papers find their way to even the remotest village of the empire?

Is it not a fact that many small communities in Siberia which have been forgotten by the imperial government govern their own affairs in the most praiseworthy manner, absolutely without any control by czar, pope, police or tschinnoviks?

We who know the Russian people know it to be entirely different from the general ideas about it. We remember how the Russian peasants behaved when they were suddenly relieved from serfdom.

During the last few years which preceded the upheaval which set the serfs free there were violent peasant uprisings all over, property was destroyed and chateaus burned and pillaged.

During the reign of Katherina not a single year passed that troops did not have to suppress peasant riots. Thirteen governments were in open revolt at one time, and peasants were shot down by the hundreds by regular armies before peace was restored.

When it became known that the czar intended to abolish serfdom all the large landowners raised the cry that the proclamation would be followed by anarchy all over the country; that the peasants liberated from their fetters would kill every landed aristocrat and set fire to every chateau in the country. The greatest precautions were taken to prevent this, and on Feb. 19, 1861, whole armies were held in readiness to suppress the expected disturbances. But what happened?

There was no distill where municipal institutions were more splendidly run. Schools, hospitals, churches and public roads were built and more improvements were made in these two zemstvos than in any others in the country, and all this was accomplished without borrowing a kopeck from the outside, the taxpayers gladly contributing all the money necessary.

And there are many other proofs. Have not the tens of thousands of soldiers who have sacrificed their lives with the greatest enthusiasm in the far east, in Manchuria and inside the walls of Port Arthur, proved that the Russian people possess moral power and courage to face death like heroes?

Were they fighting for a just cause, had they received a little more training, they would know not only how to die, but how to conquer.

We have no fear of the disintegration of the empire. It is only a question of time when the nationalities ruled by Russia will acquire autonomy, and this will happen without the continuous quarrels which we witness every day in Austria. The Russians are not nearly as small a minority within the empire as are the Germans in Austria.

The Russian people will soon see the end of autocracy and when given a constitution will show itself fully able to govern its own affairs, and when full amnesty is given to all political offenders the thousands of men of all classes who have suffered imprisonment and banishment rather than prove traitors to their ideals will carry Russia onward and forward on the road to honor and fame. From the ranks of these martyrs shall be chosen a set of officials who will soon silence those who think that the Russian people are not fit for self government.

FOREST FARM FOR BABY SON

Estate to Be Formed by Indiana Man For One-year old Child.

A forest and a sheep farm of 420 acres is the estate to be formed by P. J. Eigenmann, president of the Rockport Trust company, for his son, now one year old, says a dispatch from Indianapolis, Ind.

W. H. Freeman, secretary of the Indiana state board of forestry, in his talks before farmers' institutes recently has tried to impress on his hearers the value of using their broken sandy clay land for forest preserves. Mr. Eigenmann became so interested in the plan that he has decided to turn 420 acres of broken, denuded sandy clay land at Bradley's Crossing into a forest and sheep farm and hopes that by the time the boy, for whose benefit the investment is made, grows up this property, now valued at about $10 an acre, will be very valuable.

In speaking of the experiment Mr. Freeman described the soil as about six feet deep, underlaid with soapstone clay, which formed an impenetrable stratum for water. When exposed and denuded, said Freeman, this land becomes barren and badly eroded. "This sort of land can be made valuable," he said. "On the loose, sandy clay black locust trees will be planted eight to twelve feet apart. In the harder clay soil chestnut trees will be planted at similar distances."

"Wherever locust trees are found there you will also find a fine stand of blue grass. The locust tree is leguminous, not dense of shade. Its roots rapidly network the soil and prevent erosion, and a few years will see a dense, luxuriant growth of blue grass. "These trees afford just enough denseness of shade to protect such land from the sun's rays, conserve the moisture and stimulate a growth of grass, and the seeds, leaves and flowers, because of their leguminous properties, act as fertilizer. Thinning of the trees and the grass will follow as necessity demands. It is after a good stand of grass is obtained that the stock will be allowed to graze over the land. Meantime the trees will be protected from the stock."

"The objects aimed at will be accomplished. Grazing for sheep and cattle will be afforded, and a valuable forest estate of posts, telegraph and telephone poles and railroad timbers will be obtained. I can think of no more practical way to provide for that one-year-old son."

Resort For Shopgirls.

At a recent meeting in Chicago of the National Promotion of Health club Mrs. E. Cornelia Clavin announced that the club has been offered 100 acres of land in the Ozark mountains as a place of recreation for sick shopgirls on the condition that the organization increased its membership to 1,000, says a Chicago dispatch. She made a plea for this increased membership. "There are many girls who work in the stores from one year to the other," she said, "who are tired out and need a complete rest. Our plan is to have a place where they can spend a few months of the summer, living in tents, and recover the health they have lost in the stores."

Return of Pendent Earrings.

Cluster settings for earrings, such as emeralds surrounded by pearls or by diamonds, are at present the correct thing among stage women and others who like pronounced effects, says the Jewelers' Circular-Weekly. These earrings are made up in the same forms as the jeweled buttons now in vogue on velvet frocks. Pendent earrings in old fashioned silver and gold, with added settings of gems, are being displayed in some of the oriental shops, while antique shops offer their quaintest in earrings. If the race for costumes of certain periods should continue, jewelers predict that the pendent earrings, much jeweled, may return.

FARRAR, THE WAIF

[Copyright, 1934, by Richard B. Shelton.] Farrar had never before numbered philanthropy among his sins, but since Miss Curtis had taken charge of the Fresh Air Fund home in the little village where he spent his summers Farrar had evinced a decided interest in the movement.

Heretofore he had labeled children—of the fresh air fund variety and otherwise—as unmitigated little nuisances whose chief aim in life was to annoy their elders and bring people's hearts into their mouths by falling into the river or crossing the street in front of a speeding automobile.

He had even complained to the town authorities—before Miss Curtis took charge, of course—of the noise created by the fifty or more youngsters who resided a few doors below his place, and he had suggested that the home be removed to the woods outside the town.

But, with the advent of Miss Curtis, Farrar's attitude underwent a sudden and thorough change. From the moment he laid eyes on her young, earnest face and looked into her clear gray eyes—all this was at the post-office while he was apologizing for bumping unceremoniously against her—Farrar thanked his stars that the town authorities had not listened to his suggestions concerning the removal of the home.

It was because of Miss Curtis that the youngsters of the home held frequent and boisterous picnics in Farrar's pine grove; it was because of her that they often rode—a dozen at a time—in his automobile and picked his gooseberries and currants unmolested.

Certain it was that the fresh air colony ruled Farrar, who explained his change of heart by stating that he had discovered that they were "interesting little brutes." It is extremely doubtful, however, if this interest in itself would have been sufficient to induce him to drive his automobile to the village post-office with a dozen unkempt urchins clinging precariously to the mid-wards. His interest in "the little brutes" was aided and abetted by a frank smile from a pair of clear gray eyes that greeted him when he returned his screeching load to the home.

Instead of cursing the noisy brood at the home he smiled indulgently at their vocal exertions, for that noise was intimately connected with Miss Curtis, and Miss Curtis, all unconsciously on her part, had entered into the place in Farrar's dreams reserved for the one woman in the world.

Farrar walked down the street toward the home in the red glow of an August evening, a huge basket of currants in one hand and a bundle of cast-off but still useful clothing (begged personally from young matrons of his acquaintance) in the other. Behind him strode his solemn faced gardener similarly accoutered and evidently of the opinion that the boss was out of his head.

On the veranda of the home Farrar dismissed the gardener and, entering the house, found Miss Curtis in her cool little office.

"I've foraged more or less successfully for the clothes you wanted for your charges," he said, depositing his load, "and I brought you all the currants that are ripe. You can use them, I suppose."

"You're more than kind," she said gratefully. "You have given me the first ray of light in a long, wearying day. Sometimes I think they're very ungrateful little beasts, and I'm almost tempted to give up this work."

"Do," he said eagerly.

She smiled wearily.

"If it wasn't for the question of bread and butter involved—"

"Try something else," Farrar interrupted.

"I'm certainly open to suggestions," she said, with a sigh.

"Well," said he, "I know a place you're admirably adapted to. I know a waif that has some sterling qualities and many faults. I'd like to see him under proper care. If the faults were corrected and the sterling qualities developed, I think he might make quite a man. I wish you'd take him and experiment with him."

"And starve in the meantime?" she asked.

"Oh, no," he said. "The waif is not like these here. He has plenty of money in trust for him, and a part of it could be set aside for his education. What he needs is a personal interest taken in him. He's a friendless sort of chap. That's why I call him a waif."

"Tell me more about this," she urged.

"What could I do for him?"

"You could make a man of him. I'm convinced," he said.

"Where are his relatives?" she asked.

"In heaven—I hope," said he.

"Poor chap. And he's all alone?"

"Absolutely."

"And you think I could get a position as sort of governess to him?"

"No," he said flatly. "I don't."

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

new Organidies—A Smart Corset Cover—A Spring Golf Suit.

Lovely organidies are to be seen in the shops. Some of the patterns are exquisitely rose strewn with pink little buds and great nodding heads vying in beauty with each other.

Corset covers made entirely of rows of insertion alternating with bands of swiss embroidery are very new in the lingerie world. The covers are gathered into a heading of lace at the waist, through which wash ribbon is run and tied up on the shoulders with three inch wide ribbon bows.

A new golf suit for the spring is in vogue of a green and white mixture. The skirt is ankle length, made in a graceful circular cut. The jaunty short jacket is of plain green cloth, banded and blousing slightly over the waist in front. The revers of the coat are faced with the checked material of which the skirt is made. A white flannel shirt waist, turnover linen collar and silk tie complete the costume.

The picture shows a fancy ball dress representing a clover. The pointed bodice and skirt are composed of dull greenish white silk. The skirt has a ruche of silk at the bottom, and above it are applied cut out designs in silk of four leaf clovers. The chemise is of white chiffon, the pointed Louis bodice being strapped with green ribbon and finished at the top with a clover design on one side and a coardec of ribbon on the other. Panniers of figured green and white silk are fitted about the waist.

DAINTY LINGERIE.

Cashmere and Henrietta For Dancing School Frocks.

The present lingerie craze is for garments made of the softest, sheerest batiste, linen, French lawn and cambric. Beautiful hand stitchery is the chief trimming, though occasionally an entre deux of very fine lace is used.

Wash petticoats are very elaborate affairs just now and are serious rivals of the dainty silk skirts. There is a fancy for very fine white cambric skirts trimmed with endless frills of Valenciennes lace. Ruitonhole stitched ruffles ornamented further up the flounce with sprays of hand wrought dots and flowers are exquisitely dainty as a skirt trimming.

Corset covers made entirely of broderie anglaise are very new and pretty. These covers have a ruffle of some fine lace about the neck and armholes. Many of the silk petticoats have deep yokes of stockinet. Skirts of this kind are particularly to be recommended to women with large hips.

Cashmires and Henriettas are materials being revived for young girls' dresses, especially in red and white. The dresses are entirely sun ray planned, waist, skirt and sleeves. There is no other trimming except a yoke of French lace and a dainty silk sash.

Attractive little princess frocks for dancing school are made of silk skirted on cords about a yoke of lace and again skirted into a deep girdle at the waist.

The new bodice illustrated is of almost green sunray silk. It is made in the newish, skirted across-the-shoulder fashion and fastens with old silver buttons. A shawl collar of silk is edged with lace. The puffed sleeves have a full of lace upper turned back cuffs, the chemise is of lace inserted null

Performing Wonders.

Thompson's Barosma, Kidney and Liver Cure

Is not only performing wonderful cures, as all our statements will prove, but all the cures have been permanent, there being no return of the disease or any of the symptoms even after a lapse of many years.

"I was bloated and short of breath, making it very laborious for me to walk. I suffered pain in my back and sides. My stomach was also very sore and throbbled with pain. I was told I had kidney trouble and enlargement of the liver and spleen. I finally began taking Thompson's Barosma, Kidney and Liver Cure, and the first bottle reduced the measurement around my stomach from forty inches to thirty-six inches, and several bottles completely cured me. I gladly recommend it to others. This was five years ago."—M. S. LANGWORTHY, Tryonville, Pa. Thompson's Barosma 50c. and $1.00.

RACE PROBLEM

Theme of President in His New York Speech

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR ALL

North Should be More Friendly to South—What President Had to Say.

New York, Feb. 14.—As the guest of honor at the Lincoln dinner of the Republic club President Roosevelt made a speech on the race problem. He appealed to the north to make its friendship to the south all the greater because of "the embarrassing conditions for which she is not alone responsible," declared that the heartiest acknowledgments are due to the ministers, law officers, grand juries, public men and great daily newspapers in the south who have recently done such effective work in leading the crusade against lynching, and said that the problem was to "so adjust the relations between races that the backward race be trained so that it may enter into the possession of true freedom, while the forward race is enabled to preserve unharmed the high civilization wrought out by its forefathers."

The president was introduced by Louis Stern, president of the Republic club, in a brief speech. In introducing the president Mr. Stern referred to him as having earned the right "by the quality of his administration" to be called the successor of Abraham Lincoln. The sentiment evoked a demonstration lasting many moments. A mention of Mr. McKinley also caused a demonstration. The banquet was held at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel and 1,300 persons attended, including Secretary of War Taft, Elihu Root, Whitelaw Reid, B. O. Odell, Jr., Senator J. P. Dolliver, Oscar Strauss, Bishop Fowler, Lieutenant Governor M. Linn Bruce, Seth Low, William Loeb, Jr., George A. Knight and Andrew Carnegie. The president said:

"Our effort should be to secure to each man, whatever his color, equality of opportunity, equality of treatment before the law. The only safe principle upon which Americans can act is that of 'all men up,' not that of 'some men down.' The problem is to adjust the relations between two races of different ethnic type that the rights of neither be abridged nor jeopardized; that the backward race be trained so that it may enter into the possession of true freedom, while the forward race is enabled to preserve unharmed the high civilization wrought out by its forefathers."

"It is a problem demanding the best thought, the utmost patience, the most earnest effort, the broadest charity, of the statesman, the student, the philanthropist; of the leaders of thought in every department of our national life. The church can be a most important factor in solving it aright. But above all else we need for its successful solution the sober, kindly, steadfast, unselfish performance of duty by the average plain citizen in his everyday dealings with his fellows."

"The attitude of the north toward the negro is far from what it should be and there is need that the north also should act in good faith upon the principle of giving to each man what is justly due him, of treating him on his worth as a man, granting him no special favors, but denying him no proper opportunity for labor and the reward of labor. But the peculiar circumstances of the south render the problem there far greater and far more acute."

"Laziness and shiftlessness, these, and above all, vice and criminality of every kind, are evils more potent for harm to the black race than all acts of oppression of white men put together. The colored man who fails to condemn crime in another colored man, who fails to co-operate in all lawful ways in bringing colored criminals to justice, is the worst enemy of his own people, as well as an enemy to all the people. Law-abiding black men should, for the sake of their race be foremost in relentless and unceasing warfare against law-breaking black men."

"I admire and respect and believe in and have faith in the men and women of the south as I admire and respect and believe in and have faith in the men and women of the north. All of us alike, northerners and southerners, easterners and westerners, can best prove our fealty to the nation's past by the way in which we do the nation's work in the present for only thus can we be sure that our children's children shall inherit Abraham Lincoln's single-hearted devotion to the great unchanging creed that righteousness exalteth a nation."

NO BAD EFFECTS

From Long Sleep Under Hypnotic Influence—John Butler Awakened Monday Night.

John Butler, the well known young Newark man, who had been sleeping on a couch in the show window of Gil Chan's furniture store on the Saturday night, having been placed under the hypnotic influence of Prof. La Mondo, the hypnotist and magician, was awakened on Monday night. The awakening was made by the Professor in full view of his audience. When Mr. Butler was restored to his normal condition he rubbed his eyes, looked around in a dazed sort of way, and apparently had experienced no bad effects from his long sleep. He said that he felt all right, and that he was neither thirsty nor hungry. He also said that during his long sleep he had not been cognizant of anything that had been going on around him. Prof. La Mondo gave a fine entertainment before a fair sized audience, and all were well pleased.

RAILWAY RUMBLES

FIREMEN ON THE NEW HAVEN MAY GO ON STRIKE.

Pickups in Newark Shops and Offices—General and Local Railway News.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 14.—None of the grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen would talk about the coming conference with the subcommittee of the directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad over the grievance which President Mellen declined to remedy. It is said that the firemen refused an offer to have the question at issue arbitrated. Advertisements are appearing in papers for experienced firemen, but whether these notices are in behalf of this railroad in particular is not known.

Lower Passenger Rate.
Passengers on the Panhandle are getting the benefit of a tunnel built 25 years ago on that road which cut this distance over the main line between Pittsburg and Columbus and intermediate points west of Gould (also vice versa) making the line two miles shorter. The revised passenger tariffs which became effective Wednesday mark the difference in distance, and the rates are lowered correspondingly. A small difference in the fare between points one of which is east and the other west of Gould (or vice versa) results, and in taking mileage the conductors tear off two miles less than they did prior to Wednesday morning. The difference in fare between Pittsburg and Columbus amounts to about 15 cents.

The old line of the Panhandle between Pittsburg and Columbus was 193 miles in length, but the use of the tunnel cut the distance down to 191 miles; also the distance between points in opposite directions from the Gould tunnel is two miles less. The old feature of the revision in rates appears when it is recalled that the Gould tunnel opened for service between 20 and 25 years ago, and the traffic department of the road has never recognized the difference in distance in making up the list of tariffs. The fare to Columbus was decreased 15 cents some months ago, and now, after a quarter of a century, the Panhandle recognizes in all rates via Gould that its line is two miles shorter than originally.

A Popular Man Promoted.
A few days ago mention was made of George W. Squiggins, the popular Traveling Passenger Agent of the B. & O. at Cleveland. Since that time Mr. Squiggins has been promoted in the B. & O. service and goes to Baltimore. The Cleveland Leader of February 11, has this to say of him and his new position:

"Announcement was made yesterday afternoon that on March 1 George W. Squiggins will become district passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, with offices at Baltimore, succeeding Captain B. F. Bond, who has been assigned to other duties. Mr. Squiggins has just returned from Baltimore, where he has been in conference with Mr. Martin. Until the present time and covering a period of two years he has been traveling passenger agent in the Cleveland territory. His Cleveland friends will be delighted with the announcement that his faithful services for the road have been rewarded. Mr. Squiggins came to Cleveland six years ago from Pittsburg, where he had been in the service of the Baltimore & Ohio, to take charge of the passenger and ticket business of the road in Cleveland, with the title of passenger and ticket agent. When the B. & O. took over the C. L. & W. there was a slight reorganization here and Mr. Squiggins was promoted to the position of traveling passenger agent, having one of the most important situations in this territory. He has traveled for the two years which have just passed and the first of this week was called to Baltimore. His new position is one of importance. It has been filled by Captain Bond, one of the best known passenger men on the road. After thirty years of service at that one post the B. & O. people wish to transfer him to another position where he will be of use to the passenger business may be available by the men with whom he will associate. Mr. Squiggins, belonging to the younger and more progressive element in the railroad business, has been called to that important post to take up the work where Captain Bond left off. The position is no sinecure, but those who watched Mr. Squiggins in the Cleveland territory are confident of his success. As one of the railroad men said yesterday afternoon: 'When they want a real good, live, up-to-date passenger hustler Cleveland usually has a supply on tap.'"

A FREE LECTURE

On Municipal Ownership By John Z. White at Taylor Hall, Here, Friday Evening.

John Z. White, under the management of the Henry George Lecture association of Chicago, will lecture at Taylor hall, Friday evening, February 17, at 7:30 o'clock, on the subject: "The Municipal Ownership of Public Utilities."

Mayor Crilly will preside and introduce the speaker. After the lecture Mr. White may have something to say about the doctrines and teachings of Henry George. Those who are somewhat familiar with the views of Henry George, as set forth in his book, "Progress and Poverty," understand that the questions of justice and moral right between man and man was his dominant thought.

Ladies' literary clubs, the ministers of the city, representatives of labor organizations, city officials, professional men, merchants and business men are specially invited to hear Mr. White. No admittance fee will be required.

In the afternoon of Friday Mr. White will address the teachers and members of the high school at the high school chapel at 2:30 o'clock, on "The Dignity of Labor."

DR. THOMPSON

Accepts Invitation to Address Men's Church Club in This City on Thursday Evening.

Rev. Lester S. Boyce, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, received a letter from Dr. W. O. Thompson, president of the Ohio State University at Columbus, this morning, accepting the invitation of the men's church club to speak in Newark, on Thursday evening this week at 7:30 o'clock. Dr. Thompson announces that he will have for his subject on that occasion "Presbyterianism and Men."

At a meeting of the club Sunday night a committee on refreshments was appointed and each member of the club was given permission to invite a number of friends.

Dr. Thompson who has been instrumental in placing the State University in the front rank of Ohio colleges, is a Licking county product. He was born and brought up at Brownsville, this county, and through his own effort acquired an education and made an honored place in the world for himself.

PLANS COMPLETED

For Gymnasium at Shepardson College For Women at Granville—Cleveland Hall Finished.

Richards, McCarty & Bulford have completed plans for the gymnasium for Shepardson College for Women at Granville. The new gym will be very up-to-date. It will have a swimming pool and every kind of bath. Cleveland hall, the new gymnasium in connection with Denison university, also at Granville, has been completed. Besides having a fine plunge bath and every feature of gymnasium, it contains a bowling alley, billiard parlors and society rooms.

A Touching Story

Is the saving from death of the baby girl of Geo. A. Eyer, Cumberland, Md. He writes: "At the age of 11 months our little girl was in declining health, with serious Throat Trouble, and two physicians gave her up. We were almost in despair when we resolved to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. The first bottle gave relief; after taking four bottles she was cured, and is now in perfect health." Never fails to relieve and cure a cough or cold. At Hall's Drug Store, 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.
